KREC Online Has a New Look

The updated KREC website goes live this month, so be sure to check out the new layout at www.krec.ks.gov. The new format is designed to improve usability and function for visitors. Follow us on Facebook and Twitter for updates and reminders, too!

Frequent Audit Violations

In 2013, the Kansas Real Estate Commission made significant changes to its audit program with the implementation of Audit-by-Mail. Previously, all audits were done in person. By conducting audits through mail or email, the Commission is able to more efficiently and economically examine broker records. The program is designed to be more convenient for brokers and less intrusive to the broker’s daily business.

The main purpose of an audit is to determine if funds received by licensees in real estate transactions are handled properly and the transaction complies with Kansas law. Between July 1, 2013 and December 31, 2014 the Commission conducted 662 audits. From those audits the Commission compiled a list of the most common violations. Many of these violations can be avoided.
The most common violations found are:

- Failure to include brokerage relationships disclosure in the purchase contract
- Failure to include radon gas disclosure or KBI offender registration in the contract
- Failure to obtain purchase agreement receipt and earnest money receipt from the third party escrow agent and include it in the transaction file
- Failure to correctly assign transaction numbers
- Failure to close transaction by the date specified in the contract

The Commission strives to provide brokers with formal notification within six months. The broker will receive notice of any disciplinary action by U.S. Mail. If disciplinary action is initiated by the Commission, the broker will have an opportunity to request a hearing. From the Executive Director

I have been with the Commission a little over a year and it’s clear to me our most valuable resource is the professional staff we have to serve the licensees and the general public.

We make every attempt to fulfill our mission by developing responsive policies and procedures which are customer service focused and not unduly burdensome to licensees.

Please feel free to contact our office if you have comments or suggestions as to how we can better serve you.
